AMBERG'S SYSTEM OF LETTER FILING.

IN presenting this Catalogue, we take pleasure in stating that the latest improvements in the construction of the AMBERG CABINETS make them absolutely perfect in all their parts. Our efforts have been so kindly received that we feel warranted in considering the File as now made all that can be desired for the purpose.

The object of this system was to enable those having a correspondence of any magnitude, not only to dispose of it systematically, but to produce a method by which one could refer to letters and documents—no matter at what time received—directly, instantly, and with the greatest degree of certainty. In its infancy it was exceedingly difficult to induce even a trial, but years of effort made it an established fact, and now, in its fourteenth year, with constantly added improvements, none remain to question its merits. It has, therefore, become a question of ultimate economy, utility and convenience—such as would be the purchase of an office desk or safe.

This system of filing was so radically different from others in common use, that our former Catalogues have been exhaustive in describing it and the results accomplished, but our object is to make this edition as simple and concise as possible; yet we trust enough is presented to make the system understood by all. Particular attention is called to the excellence and completeness of the minor working parts, the effect of these being of far more importance than is generally considered.

We can arrange and index our AMBERG CABINETS to suit the needs and requirements of any correspondence, and will always feel gratified if questioned regarding any features of the system which have not been stated with sufficient clearness in this Catalogue.

Hoping we may be favored with your order, we remain,

Yours faithfully,

Description of Mechanical Parts.

THE FILES in an Amberg Cabinet are all the same size, measuring 10x12x3¼ inches inside. They are not simple boxes, but have other parts, viz.: Spring, Wire, Slide, Label and Index. The SPRINGS, two on each File (made of the finest steel, tempered), are each "two-leaved," giving great elasticity and strength, and furnish the power to the WIRE, which performs a double function: first, that of exerting a constant pressure on the contents of the File equivalent to a four-pound weight, which increases as the File fills up; and, second, when raised, it stands rigidly in place and forms a rest for the papers in referring. The ends of the Wire are provided with rollers, so that the Springs act freely, and the Wire bears down on the contents of the File where the pressure is most needed, and there is no paper in the File—not even a postal card—free from its constant effect; when raised, the Wire stands upright, so that it acts as a book cover (i. e.—the File being held in the left hand, the contents may be turned over and examined, much the same as turning the leaves of a book; also, if laid on desk when referring, it is more convenient to rest the File on front edge, and hold it at about the same angle as it occupies when held in the hand, as above mentioned), the construction of the Index Sheets being such as to freely open and remain so at any point. The Wire is bent in the centre, giving room for the arm in filing letters—without which simple provision the operator's arm, being held up higher, would soon tire. The Springs and Wire are both nickel-plated. The SLIDE is ingeniously constructed to hold the Index Sheets in the File, and is cut out in front to display the Label; it is made of brass, and nickel-plated. The parts above described are the same in each File. The LABEL and INDEX are, however, different, according to the uses to which each File is put. The LABEL is a black card printed in gold letters, and rests in a holder independently of the Slide, which only acts as a frame to it (see illustration). The Label is removable, and as business changes frequently require a change of Label, we furnish new Labels free of charge. The INDEX is made of tough manilla paper, ten inches wide by twelve inches long, and consists of twenty-five loose sheets with a heavy press-board cover on top. Each sheet has a fastener of special construction attached at the back, at which place the paper is strengthened with cloth so that it is impossible for the fastener to tear out. A tin yoke passes around the necks of the fasteners, keeping all in place. The Index is perfectly expansible, so that any desired number of letters can be filed between any two sheets. The press-board cover is very thick, so that when the Wire is down the pressure is evenly distributed, and the curling up of the front of the Index (formerly a source of inconvenience, when a light cover was used,) is now impossible. Our WOOD WORK is of the best quality—nothing but thoroughly seasoned and choice lumber is used—and handsomely finished inside and out. The sides (and doors also, when made with doors,) are paneled and veneered, and the back is also paneled and made of the same wood and finished the same as the body of the Cabinet, which allows the Cabinet to be placed anywhere without fear of being unsightly. Cabinets with doors are provided with Locks.

INDEX.

This description of the parts would be incomplete without specially mentioning the so-called INDEX FASTENING DEVICES by which the Index is held in the File. As we have before explained, the Index Sheets are held together by a yoke which encircles the necks of the fasteners. The File is cut out inside at the back, forming a recess which admits the projecting Index Fasteners and yoke. The Slide when put on passes over the yoke and hides it from view, and firmly holds the Index in place. It will be seen that the inside of the File is entirely free from obstructions (see cut on opposite page), so that letters can be squarely filed at any point against the back or sides, giving it a greater capacity and making a neat volume.

Amberg's System of Letter Filing.

EXPLANATION.

THE above shows the outward appearance of an Amberg Cabinet, with doors, containing twenty-four Files. The first fifteen Files are lettered from A to Z. It is our intention that each File shall have a proportionate share of letters filed. If one File were lettered "A" and the next "B," the proportion would be unequal, as we have ascertained that in one thousand names "A" will average twenty-seven names and "B" ninety-nine—together they make a total of one hundred and twenty-six, and by dividing as above shown we make the proportion right. "C" will average sixty-seven names in one thousand; "D E" together sixty-eight, etc. Each one of these fifteen Files has an Index inside, consisting of twenty five expansible sheets, which, by means of lettered margins, subdivides the papers filed. The "H" File, for example, has an Index lettered as per combinations shown on opposite page, which shows the style and size of type used. The letters or papers are placed flat between the Index sheets, which expand at any part to accommodate letters filed. The filing is exceedingly simple—letters from "Hall" would be placed on top of Index sheet

HAL

Letters from "Henderson," on top of

HEM HEN

Letters from "Hoffman," on top of

HOA HOF

In making these Indexes, Mr. Amberg has ascertained not only the relative importance of every letter, but of each subdivision of every letter; the Index divisions are based on one hundred thousand selected names of his own compilation for this sole object—a work covering many YEARS OF TEDIOUS LABOR—and having, therefore, a mathematical or computed basis, there will be as nearly as possible an equal number of letters filed away in each space.

The first fifteen Files of the Cabinet illustrated on opposite page are used to file all letters, orders, telegrams, postal cards, or general correspondence of all kinds. There are in every business, special papers, such as Bills, Contracts, Invoices, Receipts, etc., which need to be provided for; and again in many instances, Branch Houses, Salesmen, or other correspondents, from whom letters are received daily. To accommodate this class of papers we have a large variety of Indexes, some of which are dated, others alphabetical, and still others entirely blank. Of such Indexes, the following are used most frequently:

- Index No. 242—Entire alphabet from A to Z.
- " 310—Two entire alphabets, each covering twelve leaves, keeping two kinds of papers separate in one File.
- " 61—Dated, one month on each leaf, lasting two years.
- " 98—Dated, one-half month on each leaf, lasting one year.
- " 99—Weekly divisions, lasting six months, from January to June inclusive.
- " 100—Weekly divisions, lasting six months, from July to December inclusive.
- " 63—Daily Divisions, one day to a leaf, thirty-one leaves.
- " 298—Arranged by dates, to keep correspondence from two persons, or two kinds of papers, separate, in same File.
- " 299—Arranged by dates, to keep correspondence from three persons, or three kinds of papers, separate, in same File.
- " 300—Arranged by dates, to keep correspondence from four persons, or four kinds of papers, separate, in same File.
- " 272—Six blank leaves, margins not lettered.
- " 271—Twelve blank leaves, margins not lettered.
- " 358—Eighteen blank leaves, margins not lettered.
- " 220—Twenty-five blank leaves, margins not lettered.
- " 296—For Filing by numbers, from 1 to 500.
- " 297—For Filing by numbers, from 501 to 1000.
- " 435—One half with monthly dates for one year, other half full alphabet, A to Z.
- " 434—One half with twelve blank leaves, other half full alphabet, A to Z.

Referring to the illustration, the special labels there shown suggest the use of a variety of these Indexes. If "Chicago House" writes on an average once a day, use No. 61 Index; if twice a day, use No. 98 Index; if four or five times a day, use alternately, Nos. 99 and 100. For "Contracts and Receipts," Index No. 310 is proper. The File "Jenkins-Norton" suggests the No. 298 Index. "Banks" is for letters from Banks and Bankers, which are filed in Index No. 242. "Circulars," when used for the classification of circulars issued, take say No. 358 Index; if used for filing circulars received, use No. 242 Index. Lastly, we have four Files for "Invoices," divided from A to Z. This discloses the fact that it is not necessary to restrict special papers to one File—in fact, in arranging a Cabinet, each class of papers should have as many Files as the quantity of such papers requires. The alphabet is properly divided as follows:

Alphabet in 2 Files—A to K—L to Z

" 3 Files—A to G—H to N—O to Z

" 4 Files—A to E—F to K—L to Q—R to Z

" 5 Files—A B C—D to G—H to L—M to R—S to Z

" 6 Files—A B C—D to G—H to K—L to O—P to S—T to Z

" 7 Files—A B—C D E—F G H—I to L—M to Q—R S—T to Z

" 8 Files—A B—C D—E F G—H to K—L M—N to R—S—T to Z

Mr. Amberg has computed the division of Files up to 150, but it is unnecessary to print a further list. We can supply a division of the alphabet to cover any number of Files, with Indexes to correspond—we do not limit the choice to a few selected computations, as we have them all. The manner in which the alphabet is divided into 10, 15, 18, 24, 30, 40, 52, and 75 parts is shown in the different illustrations of Cabinets in this Catalogue.

How to Use an Amberg Cabinet.

WHEN a number of papers are to be filed, first partially draw out all the Files—those in the bottom row as far as possible, and gradually towards the top, each a little less, which will leave ample space to slip the papers into the proper Files; after the letters, etc., are distributed, we take one File after another and put away the papers into proper space in the Index. Should a letter accidentally be “distributed” into the wrong File, it will be impossible to file it; for instance, a letter from “Baker” cannot be put away in a “C” File, because its Index provides only for names beginning with initial “C”—hence, mistakes in filing into the wrong File cannot occur.

In order to obtain the full benefit of the capacity of the Files, it will be profitable to observe the following directions: Always file against the back and also against the upper or lower end of the File. Note size sheets should be put two on a page, except that none should cover up the lettering of the Index—turn them around if they do. Postal cards should be filed in the corners, and, if numerous, four on a page. These simple directions being observed, renders reference to the contents much more agreeable, and makes a neat and more compact volume.

TRANSFER CASE—Empty.

REMOVALS FROM CABINET.

Many persons have a natural desire to empty out the Cabinet at the end of stated periods, say once in six months, or once a year. This is all wrong, for a great many reasons. The following system, based on the economical principle of emptying no File until full, is the most satisfactory. When one of the Files is full—it does not matter which one it may be—it is emptied of its contents, Index included, which are placed in Transfer Case number 1, and stored away. A record of the removal is made on a Record Slip provided in the bottom of the File emptied, embracing the dates beginning and ending, and the number of the volume. The volumes are simply numbered consecutively, no lettering or marking being necessary. The

TRANSFER CASE—FILLED.

File being empty, requires a new Index, same form number as the one removed, and a new volume is begun. When another File is full, its contents are removed to Transfer Case number 2, dates recorded, etc. When a third File is full, its contents are placed into Transfer Case number 3, etc., etc. This system of removals is continued regularly, and the record kept in each File makes reference to volumes much more direct and rapid than any other plan that could be adopted.

THE TRANSFER CASE

is a substantial box, the back being of wood, with an aperture or “slot” in the inside. When the contents of a File are placed in the Transfer Case, the Index fasteners are inserted into the slot, and secured by the racking down of a small strip of wood that is provided in each one. Outwardly the Transfer Cases, when placed on a shelf, resemble a row of books, being neatly printed and lined to present that effect. Each purchaser of a Cabinet is given four Transfer Cases, numbered 1 to 4, and when others are ordered, the consecutive numbering is done by us without charge. Orders should state what number to begin with.

ADVANTAGES GAINED

BY

Using Amberg's Cabinet Letter Files.

- 1—Folding, endorsing, binding, numbering, pasting and indexing are all dispensed with; the mere act of putting away a letter does more than all these.
- 2—So many Indexed divisions exist, that the letters from each correspondent are practically isolated from the rest, consequently few papers need be handled when a particular one is wanted.
- 3—Papers are kept free from dust and mutilation, cannot be filed in the wrong File, and are instantly found when wanted.
- 4—A letter five years old, filed by this system, can be as readily and certainly found as if received within thirty days, and in almost the same time.
- 5—A system of Indexing guaranteed perfect in simplicity, accuracy, detail and extent. Nothing guessed at—all perfected by years of study and actual experience.
- 6—A handsome, durable article; A-1 in material and construction; improved time and again, tested by experience, perfected in every part, and worth many times its cost. The Cabinets are made to last, and like any other first-class article they more than repay in service the slight additional first cost.

ITS PERFECTED FEATURES ARE:

- 1—Entirely free from obstructions inside, allowing letters to be filed squarely against back and ends.
- 2—A quick acting automatic Spring, which never loses its power.
- 3—A constant, even pressure, which is greater as the File fills up; directly bearing where most needed, and indirectly, by means of heavy Index cover, over entire surface of contents.
- 4—A removable Label, which can be easily changed for another when desired.
- 5—An Index which expands freely as File fills up.
- 6—When raised, the Wire forms a rest while referring; contents open out and may be turned over like the leaves of a book, or taken out and replaced at pleasure.
- 7—Postal cards and small pieces of paper are as firmly held in place as large sheets.
- 8—A Spring occupying very little space in the inside of the File, so that a compact volume  $2\frac{3}{4}$  inches thick is obtained without crowding.
- 9—A Transfer Case in which the contents are as securely fastened as in the File itself.
- 10—A Transfer Case from which letters can be removed and afterwards replaced without disturbing others, and which keeps them free from dust.

*These Cabinets have extra high bases, as shown in illustrations, being made especially to stand on the floor. For larger sizes, please write.

*These sizes made only without doors; all others either without or with doors.

To ascertain size of Cabinet absolutely required, estimate the amount of correspondence and office papers received daily, and divide by two (for example, if sixty per day are received, at least a 30-File Cabinet will be wanted). The size according to this estimate may not be of a proper shape for the office space available, hence examine the shapes and dimensions as given opposite the various sizes. Now determine how the Special Files are to be labeled on the front, and, referring to page 7, indicate the number of Index wanted in each File. For convenience, we mention a list of Specials often used—from which select those wanted and add any others omitted—viz.:

As many Files as desired may be taken for any special purpose, according to the quantity of such papers to be filed. Having completed the list of Specials, the remainder of the Files is given to General Correspondence, excepting one or more Files may be left "blank" for a future emergency.

The order should cover the following points:

*Number of Files and shape of Cabinet, with or without doors.
Number of Files for general correspondence. (We will furnish the proper division and Indexes.)*

*List of Specials, and kind of Index for each.
Are Locks wanted on any of the Files? (Locks charged extra.)

Where Amberg's Cabinets are in Use in Canada.

THE former custom of printing a list of persons using the Amberg Cabinet Letter Files is no longer practicable, as the list has grown too large. The United States list alone could hardly be printed on one hundred pages of this size, two columns to a page, so it is omitted altogether.
